

What role do you think anxiety may play in catatonia?

Dr. Gazdag:

According to the results of the small number of studies that targeted subjective experiences of patients during catatonia, fear and anxiety are the most common feelings patients experience while in the catatonic state.

Further studies are needed to explore this correlation. And as I've mentioned, it's the target of one of our ongoing research efforts.