

Would you consider catatonia to be a psychiatric condition, a neuropsychiatric condition, or a medical condition?

Jonathan Rogers:

I consider catatonia to be a neuropsychiatric disorder. That is to say, both it falls between neurology and psychiatry, but also it can be caused by neurological conditions and by psychiatric conditions.